Production Worker

We're hiring a Production Worker to support our production in the day-to-day handling of lumber products. This is a hands-on position focused on flipping, stacking, sorting, counting, measuring, and labeling a wide variety of green and kiln-dried lumber and timbers. Accuracy and safe material handling are essential.

The job entails indoor and outdoor work depending on production needs with exposure to noise, dust, and changing weather.

Canadian Bavarian crafts raw wood into made-to-order materials for architects, builders, and designers. We manage every step of production, from raw log to finished profile, through a vertically integrated facility. We operate as an almost net-zero facility. Offcuts and by-products heat our buildings. A large on-site solar array powers operations. Efficiency and sustainability are built into how we work.

Where You Can Find Us

Founded over 40 years ago in Duncan, BC, and now located in Chemainus, BC since 2004, our work is in homes, civic buildings, and cultural spaces around the world.

We operate from Vancouver Island, British Columbia. Located off of Vancouver's coast and accessible via Victoria International and Nanaimo Airport. Chemainus is a small town with forestry roots. Community life is vibrant, with local businesses, cafes, and shops contributing to a welcoming atmosphere.

The region offers abundant outdoor recreation like hiking, mountain biking, skiing, surfing, kayaking, climbing, golfing, fishing, and trail running. Beyond outdoor recreation, the area offers a rich arts scene, seasonal festivals, small independent shops, excellent local food, and a slower pace of life that supports focus, community, and balance.

The Value of Joining Our Team

Joining our team isn't just about clocking in - it's about becoming part of something bigger. Here, you'll grow a fulfilling career rooted in craftsmanship, driven by purpose, and supported by a strong sense of community and sustainability.
